

VMware Certification Upgrade Policy

Last Updated: April 2021

How do I upgrade my VCP?

Since the change in the recertification policy, we have introduced a couple easier ways to upgrade your previous certifications. The different upgrade paths are listed on our website, and this blog will help outline the general upgrade policy that you will see reflected on the individual certification website pages.

If you wish to upgrade to the current year certification (ex: VCP-DCV 2021) and you hold the previous certification version in the same track (ex: VCP-DCV 2020), then you can either complete a qualifying course or pass the qualifying exam to upgrade. If you hold a certification going back 2-3 versions (ex: VCP6.5-DCV or newer), then you can pass the qualifying exam to upgrade to the current year certification. If you hold a certification four or more versions back (ex: VCP6-DCV) then you are required to complete a qualifying course and pass the qualifying exam in the same track. If you hold a certification in a different track within 3 versions of the most current version, (ex: VCP7-CMA) then you can pass the qualifying exam to upgrade.
